National Pharmacy Week 2025

National Pharmacy Week (NPW) 2025 was celebrated at Shri Vile Kelavani Mandal's College of Pharmacy with great enthusiasm and active participation from students. This annual celebration aims to highlight the vital role of pharmacists in the healthcare system and to create awareness about their contributions to society.

National Pharmacy Week is an important professional event observed across India to recognize the services of pharmacists and to educate the public about the importance of safe medication use, health awareness, and pharmaceutical care. It is also a platform for pharmacy students to showcase their skills, creativity, and understanding of current healthcare needs.

The theme for NPW 2025, "Pharmacists as Advocates of Vaccination", carries special significance in today's global health environment. Pharmacists play a key role in promoting vaccination, guiding the public, dispelling myths, and improving access to life-saving immunizations.

This theme encouraged students to understand their future responsibility as healthcare professionals educating communities, supporting preventive healthcare, and contributing to national immunization programs.

To celebrate NPW meaningfully, the college conducted various competitions that allowed students to express their ideas, creativity, and understanding of the theme.

1. Slogan Writing Competition

Students crafted powerful and impactful slogans focusing on vaccination awareness, the role of pharmacists, and the importance of disease prevention. The activity brought out thoughtful messages that reflected the students' awareness and social responsibility.

2. Reel Making Competition

Students created short, creative reels that highlighted the value of vaccination and how pharmacists contribute as advocates. All reels were informative, visually appealing, and effectively communicated key health messages in a modern, youth-friendly format.

3. Rangoli Competition

The Rangoli competition added color and vibrancy to the celebration. Students designed beautiful rangolis depicting vaccination themes, healthcare symbols, and the role of pharmacists. These artistic expressions drew everyone's attention and demonstrated how creativity can be used to promote health awareness.

Students participated enthusiastically in all the events. Their participation showcased teamwork, creativity, and a strong sense of professional identity. The competitions also encouraged healthy interaction among students while reinforcing the core message of this year's NPW theme.

National Pharmacy Week 2025 at Shri Vile Kelavani Mandal's College of Pharmacy concluded on a positive and inspiring note. The celebration successfully highlighted the essential role of pharmacists in vaccination advocacy and helped students understand their future impact on community health.
